Q.4 Read the following passage carefully and answer the following question :

Folk styles of Paintings : Rock paintings dating to stone ages have been discovered in many countries.In India, there are rock painting sites in the states of Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Uttarakhand, Karnataka,Andhra Pradesh and Telangana) The rock paintings in the caves at Bhimbetka are famous. Bhimbetka is a World Heritage site.Rock paintings usually depict human,animal and geometric figures. However, the style of rock paintings seems to be changing according to the cultural changes from stone ages to the beginning of agriculture. The change is visible in the depiction of flora and fauna or it may be evident in the style of portraying various figures and also in the colours that were used. Black, red and white colours were used in the rock paintings, which were made from natural substances. With the help of rock paintings we can understand the knowledge of ancient people about their natural surroundings and also the way they exploited available natural resources.The tradition of folk style of painting closely resembles the style of rock paintings.Customs such as decorating the house walls and courtyards (Rangawali) by drawing various figures and symbols or using panels of paintings to narrate stories helped to develop regional styles of folk paintings.
